

N.C. Holocaust Council BIO Submitted for - Michelle McLaughlin

Michelle McLaughlin is a K-12 Social Studies consultant with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction (NCDPI). With over twenty-five years of service to North Carolina public school education she serves on several education related boards and committees and is a member of the executive board of the North Carolina Council for the Social Studies.

During her years as a high school teacher, Michelle integrated a yearly learning experience into her classroom curriculum program by taking students on a trip to the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington D.C. In 2004 she participated in a week-long curriculum program offered by the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington D.C., focused on the using primary sources to help teach about the Holocaust.

As a former district-level curriculum specialist for middle and high school social studies Michelle has worked with NC Holocaust Council workshop coordinators and presenters for many years. In her current role as a consultant with NCDPI, Michelle looks forward to continuing to collaborate and support the mission and vision of the NC Council on the Holocaust.
